

tiny ripple of hope, and crossing each other from a million different centers of energy and daring those ripples build a current which can sweep down the mightiest walls of oppression and resistance." It is with great honor that I am able to speak about this amazing group of young activists who are spreading hope each and every day; not just in their own communities but across the country, to those who suffer from intellectual disabilities and their families.

Too often the power of our words is underestimated and misunderstood. Today marks the culmination of a month long campaign to educate all of us about the positive and negative effects that our words can have. It is with great joy today, that I am able to use my words to support their courage and activism.

Thank you to all who pledge today to think of others before they speak and thank you to all who strive each day to promote universal human dignity.

RECOGNIZING THE CONTRIBUTIONS OF LAREDO FBI SUPERVISORY SENIOR AGENT NORMAN A. TOWNSEND

HON. HENRY CUELLAR

OF TEXAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 31, 2009

Mr. CUELLAR. Madam Speaker, I rise today to recognize Norman A. Townsend for his service to the people of the State of Texas and the nation as a whole. As he prepares to move forward with his career of public service with the FBI, we proudly honor him for his five years of service to the Laredo Resident Agency where he has served as a senior supervisory agent.

Mr. Townsend earned a Bachelor's Degree in Accounting and a Master's in Criminology from Central Oklahoma University in Edmond before he began his career with the FBI on July 5, 1977. He worked as a fingerprint examiner and an accounting technician in Oklahoma City before attending the FBI Academy in Quantico, Virginia in 1984. Later that year he was assigned as a special agent to the Houston Division in Beaumont, Texas where he performed a number of investigations and continued his dedicated service to the bureau.

On August 4, 2003, Mr. Townsend transferred to the San Antonio Division in Laredo, Texas where he worked as a Supervisory Senior Agent. For the past five years, he has served the community, the state, and our country under the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Laredo. He has supervised agents, task force officers, and support personnel as they conducted investigations on public corruption, white collar crime, and joint task force terrorist investigations.

Madam Speaker, please join me in honoring Norman Townsend for his five years of dedicated service to the FBI Laredo Resident Agency and his 31 years of service to the FBI as he prepares to move forward with his career in the bureau.

ARKANSAS STATE UNIVERSITY'S 100TH ANNIVERSARY

HON. MARION BERRY

OF ARKANSAS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 31, 2009

Mr. BERRY. Madam Speaker, I rise here today to pay tribute to one of Arkansas's finest educational institutions, Arkansas State University. The University will commemorate its 100th anniversary this month. This achievement is a significant milestone for this school and all who helped shape its history.

On April 1st, 2009, the Jonesboro Community will gather at Arkansas State University to commemorate the 100th anniversary of the passage of Act 100, which established the first four agricultural schools in Arkansas. Over the past several decades, ASU has been the beneficiary of a foundation of excellence, built by the hard work and dedication from faculty, alumni, administrators and the community. Many individuals have invested in ensuring the success of the school, and thanks to their efforts we are also here today to thank them for their service.

To build a great school, time and patience are needed to attract and sustain a great faculty, develop a strong academic program, and foster an alumni network. The process is long and arduous, but Arkansas State University is resilient and continues to produce distinguished alumni and groundbreaking achievements year after year.

Arkansas State University with its first-rate, innovative style of education provides an unparalleled learning experience for their students. The growing strength of the school is demonstrated by the success of its students after they graduate and its world renowned reputation. Most importantly, the ideas and achievements from ASU's alumni will continue to transform and benefit our nation for generations.

I stand here today to ask my colleagues in the United States Congress to join me in congratulating Arkansas State University on this significant milestone. Arkansas State University has been powering the minds of its students for 100 years. The University has come a long way, has much to celebrate, and more successes to anticipate in the years to come.

RECOGNITION OF MICHAEL J. MANGINI'S E-911 INSTITUTE INDUSTRY PROFESSIONAL AWARD

HON. JAMES P. MCGOVERN

OF MASSACHUSETTS

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, March 31, 2009

Mr. MCGOVERN. Madam Speaker, a week ago today, I had the privilege of attending the E-911 Institute's 6th Annual Honors Gala Dinner Program to present my constituent, Michael J. Mangini, with the organization's prestigious industry professional award. I am grateful to have had the opportunity to personally recognize the extraordinary contributions Michael has made to public safety during the course of his remarkable career. I respectfully request that my remarks from that evening be printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD as a lasting and enduring tribute to this very special man. Thank you.

Good evening. I'm pleased to be here tonight with my colleagues for this occasion. I am proud to be a member of the E-911 Caucus and am very grateful for the important work that the E-911 Institute does on behalf emergency preparedness all across the country. I am especially honored to have been invited to present your association's prestigious industry professional award this year to one of the true unsung heroes of your profession and a constituent of mine from Hopkinton, Massachusetts, Michael Mangini.

To those of you not from Massachusetts, Hopkinton is best known as the starting place for the Boston Marathon. I can't drive 26 miles never mind run it but I wanted to share that fun fact with all of you nonetheless. Michael is joined here tonight by his wife, Susan; their daughter Christina; and his very proud parents, Mr. & Mrs. Mangini. I also want to point out Michael's friend and colleague at Plant CML, Paul Fahey, who nominated Mike for this award. Paul's parents are also constituents of mine from Worcester, Massachusetts so this is like an episode of "All in the Family" for me tonight.

In all seriousness, Michael Mangini is truly deserving of the honor you bestow on him tonight. He has devoted his entire professional career to improving emergency communications in both the public and private sectors. First, as Director of Technical Services for the City of Boston's Emergency Services Department, Michael earned the respect and admiration of the entire public safety community. His conscientious commitment to his job, his extraordinary expertise in the field and his unfailing professionalism garnered the attention of no less than the Governor of Massachusetts who asked him to serve as a founding member of the first state-wide emergency telecommunications board in 1991. As Chair of the Board's Standards Committee, Michael was principally responsible for the development and implementation of one of the largest and most successful E-911 programs in the nation. He served on the state's emergency telecommunications board for fully eleven years, and his contributions in that role have undeniably made the Commonwealth of Massachusetts a safer place to live for all of its citizens.

In addition to his service to the state, Michael has been an active member of the Association of Public Communications Officials (APCO) International since 1986 and is a past recipient of its highest honor, the Presidential Award. Michael has also been a member of the National Emergency Number Association (NENA) since 1987 and served as
